CHASE AFTER AN ELDER.

THE PREACHER WAS INNOCENT.

Wanted to Kill the Man Who Married His Sister to a Plebeian Postmaster.

San Francisco special: The unusual sight of a man of middle age, who presented the appearance of a man of the middle age, was seen in the city of San Francisco, Cal., Wednesday. Elder Bonchard, a young man, armed with a big gun and belt full of cartridges, was witnessed at the residence of the late postmaster, who was the pursued, and Frank Grimes, son of a leading politician of Ventura county, this state, formerly of Texas, was the pursuer.

The cause for flight and pursuit with blood in his eyes by Mr. Grimes, has a real little romance attached thereto, and the prominence of the parties in church matters and affairs of state make the affair a remarkable one for Mr. and Mrs. Grimes. Postmaster Chadsey, of Bardonia, fled desperately in love with Miss Lillie Grimes, but on account of the social and political prominence of the Grimes family, Chadsey was not considered as an eligible suitor to justify his aspirations to an alliance with the house of Grimes. The young lady cared not so much for family crests and arms, three prior to the flight and loved the young servant of Uncle Sam in return, all the same, and with complete indifference. Had she not waived the formality of asking any lady's consent, Chadsey would have been married to the young girl, and the young couple were married at the house of the Grimes family, and the young couple were married at the house of the Grimes family, and the young couple were married at the house of the Grimes family.

The couple did not apply at the house of Mr. Alexander, the Bardonia pastor, knowing that he would insist upon having the consent of Grimes father. Elder Bonchard was in town to attend to some dedication services, and at night went to an entertainment at the Bardonia church. The news of the wedding, meantime, had reached the ears of the Grimes family. The entertainment has just begun, and the church, up one of the aisles and toward the platform where the old gentleman, a piano was in his hand and the man was Frank Grimes, brother of the clerk, who had just been made Mrs. Postmaster Chadsey. Bonchard or other clerk was made aware of his danger and made a retreat, and the young couple were married at the house of the Grimes family.

Frank said his family nurse had been severely wounded, and nothing would induce him to leave her. While Frank was charging about the church his father and an elder brother arrived on the scene of war. They were as lightning as the young soldier of the Grimes family, and it was with the greatest trouble that the intensity of the war was put up their arms and give the elder a chance to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Chadsey left Bardonia hurriedly when they heard of the how and why of the fight. At 10 o'clock a very hard and forth looking couple sighted from a buggy and sought lodgings at the Petrolia house. They stood in awkward silence for a moment, and then Chadsey mustered courage enough to remark: "Hi, G. Chadsey and wife."

Mr. Alexander's efforts to smooth matters over for Elder Bonchard have, so far, proved futile, and the old gentleman says he will never recognize his daughter. The elder, it is said, had out that night in the sage brush, safe from the range of arms of the Grimes family. Chadsey was sure out warrants for Frank and George Grimes for the murder of his father.

An eye witness of the church scene that night says Frank Grimes had a revolver and a revolver and George a Winchester rifle. George at first sat outside on a horse while Frank went gunning in the church. The latter wanted to kill his sister and Chadsey first and then the elder, who flew out of the back door.

"My daughter was greatly troubled with scurvy, and at one time she was so ill that she would lose her sight. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has completely restored her health, and her eyes are as well as ever, with not a trace of scurvy in her system."—G. King, Killbuck, Conn.
